

Transition Planning with Trey: Community Living

Hi! My name is Trey.
I am a teen with a developmental disability.

My dream is to live in a house with a romantic partner. Until then, I need to work on my daily living skills.

I am working on things like budgeting, cleaning, keeping a schedule, and making simple meals.

My school offers community based instruction. We go on field trips to places like the park, the grocery store, and the museum and I practice my safety skills. This is helping me become confident as a member of my community!

I like doing fun things in the community. On the social and recreation section of Work Together NC's website, I found an art that I am looking forward to taking!

My trusted adults and I are looking into housing options for when I graduate high school. The housing section of Work Together NC's has helped!

We are also figuring out what kinds of support I will need for community living.

We contacted my local managed care organization to see what adult services I can access. The daily living supports section of Work Together NC's website gave us a starting point to see what services exist!
